

ISLAND'S 3 WIDOWS.

Each Claimed the Dead Coney Island Manager's Body.

Swipes the Newsboy Prevented a Fist Fight over the Corpse.

His Brother and Sister Finally Secured It and Buried It.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., April 25.—The latest sensational gossip among the people of Coney Island, is the death of Billy Island, a theatrical and circus manager, who died here Sunday night of pneumonia.

His body has been the bone of contention between three widows, each of whom claimed to be his widow, while gossip says that he had four others of the same mind within ten miles of here who have not yet shown up.

Besides the alleged widows, there have been here the dead man's father, a wealthy manufacturer near Meriden, Conn.; his brother, Charles Island, about to become a priest, and a sister, all to claim the body and take it home for burial.

The latter three arrived Tuesday, but when Billy's father came in contact with the alleged widows, he immediately left for home in disgust. Charles Island and his sister, however, remained, and yesterday a quiet funeral was held over the body at the Seymour Club Hotel, of which the deceased was part owner.

The body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy said that the new claimant a wordy war, which resulted in a fight. The Newsboy intervened a flat fight. He boldly hustled the three women into the street and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of the dead man, they positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the young, red-haired woman, who is now in New York at the Seymour Club Hotel.

Island's body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy said that the new claimant a wordy war, which resulted in a fight. The Newsboy intervened a flat fight. He boldly hustled the three women into the street and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of the dead man, they positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the young, red-haired woman, who is now in New York at the Seymour Club Hotel.

Island's body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy said that the new claimant a wordy war, which resulted in a fight. The Newsboy intervened a flat fight. He boldly hustled the three women into the street and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of the dead man, they positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the young, red-haired woman, who is now in New York at the Seymour Club Hotel.

Island's body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy said that the new claimant a wordy war, which resulted in a fight. The Newsboy intervened a flat fight. He boldly hustled the three women into the street and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of the dead man, they positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the young, red-haired woman, who is now in New York at the Seymour Club Hotel.

Island's body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

FOUND HIM OUT AT A FUNERAL.

Mr. Springer Asserts Her Husband Has Another Wife.

While Burying Her Child the Other Mrs. Springer Appeared.

George Springer was held in the Ewen Street Court, Williamsburg, today on a charge of bigamy, preferred by Minnie Leven Springer, to whom he was married in 1882, when at the time he had another wife living.

Springer, according to the story told by the complainant, has been living a double life successfully for five years. He told the woman that he was a travelling agent, and this took him out of the city a good part of the time. It now appears that he spent this time with his other wife, Kate Keller-Springer, who lived at 200 Ely street. At both places he gave his name as Springer, but at Ely street he was known as Julius.

Mrs. Minnie Springer had one child, but it died shortly before Easter, and the funeral occurred Easter Monday. Among the mourners was a woman, who looked at the mother in surprise and finally said to her:

"There must be some mistake here. The man over here is Mr. Springer, but you are not his wife."

Mrs. Springer protested that she was. The woman argued that matter, and the visitor, who attended the funeral simply because she had seen the funeral notice in the paper and thought it was the child of her friend, Kate Springer.

The body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy said that the new claimant a wordy war, which resulted in a fight. The Newsboy intervened a flat fight. He boldly hustled the three women into the street and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of the dead man, they positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the young, red-haired woman, who is now in New York at the Seymour Club Hotel.

Island's body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy said that the new claimant a wordy war, which resulted in a fight. The Newsboy intervened a flat fight. He boldly hustled the three women into the street and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of the dead man, they positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the young, red-haired woman, who is now in New York at the Seymour Club Hotel.

Island's body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy said that the new claimant a wordy war, which resulted in a fight. The Newsboy intervened a flat fight. He boldly hustled the three women into the street and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of the dead man, they positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the young, red-haired woman, who is now in New York at the Seymour Club Hotel.

Island's body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

There they met Nellie, the concert hall singer. Swipes the Newsboy said that the new claimant a wordy war, which resulted in a fight. The Newsboy intervened a flat fight. He boldly hustled the three women into the street and locked the corpse securely in.

Though the three women claimed to be widows of the dead man, they positively declared that she possessed a certificate of marriage was Annie, the young, red-haired woman, who is now in New York at the Seymour Club Hotel.

Island's body was placed in the cemetery at Gravesend, where it will remain until Fall. Then the scandalized relatives will have the body removed to Meriden and interred there in the family vault.

Island attended the Siddons-Loeber set in New York a week ago. He caught cold and pneumonia, and he was attended him during his four days' illness.

Nellie, a concert-hall singer, whose other name is unknown here, lived with Island and claimed to be his wife. She and her sister, Flossie Smith, who is now present during the last hours of the dying man.

A quarrel ensued between "Flossie Smith" and "Nellie," which resulted in the temporary departure of the latter. The following morning a young woman with auburn hair, twenty years old, who she married in New York, arrived at the Seymour Club Hotel, where Island's body lay.

BAIL FOR MISS DEMPSEY.

Her Lawyer Deposits $2,000 Cash for Her Release.

Miss Everson Determined to Fight the Case to the End.

Two thousand dollars in cash was deposited with the Sheriff this afternoon to secure the release of Miss Lavinia H. Dempsey, who was arrested Tuesday in the suit of Miss Emma L. Everson, typewriter in the office of John Aldred Dempsey, lawyer, with offices in the Stewart Building. Miss Everson wants $10,000 damages for false imprisonment and malicious prosecution.

This morning Allen McDermott, Miss Dempsey's lawyer, came over from Jersey City and held a consultation with her in Ludlow Street Jail. After leaving her he went to the Sheriff's office and deposited the necessary cash for the release of his client.

Miss Dempsey refuses to accept the charge of her brother. She says they are in league with Miss Everson against her. Miss Dempsey would see no reporters in Ludlow Street Jail this morning, but Warden Fox says she seemed to be perfectly contented.

Last night her brother visited her at the jail and offered to go on her bond. It is said, on condition that she would sign a release, a certain mortgage of $5,000, and that she immediately refused to have anything to do with them.

The brother, who is named as John Dempsey, is in the Stewart Building, this morning. It was said by the clerk in charge of the jail that Miss Dempsey admitted no reporters, and to say that they would have nothing more to do with their sister's case. She had refused to accept their assistance, and she had retained a lawyer, she could promise to take care of herself.

Miss Everson, the pretty typewriter and stenographer, was on hand, and seemed to control things at the jail office. She evidently has no fear that the Messrs. Dempsey will dismiss her from their office, even if their sister does demand it.

She is, in fact, being backed up by them in her case against Miss Dempsey. To this extent, that they became her sureties on the undertaking for $200 each, which their sister was arrested for.

She refused to have anything to say to reporters this morning in regard to the case against Miss Dempsey. It was easy to see from her determined air that she was going to fight it to the bitter end. Her lawyer is Christopher Fine, of 114 Nassau street.

The couple were married in this city by Rev. H. C. Firth, in 1882. They lived together until October, 1884, when Mr. Battin left his wife. Four years ago he went to live at Greenwood Lake, N. Y.

The papers in the case were served by Edward S. Black yesterday, and the case will be heard by Vice-Chancellor Green next Tuesday.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

EENOUT-M'NAMEE WEDDING.

It Is Attended by the Vanderbilts, Webbs and Sloans.

Millionaire Cousin Gives the Bride a Diamond Crescent.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon, in St. John's Church, Staten Island, Miss Faith McNamee was married to Bernard Eenout, of Baltimore.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McNamee. Mrs. McNamee is a sister of the late Capt. James Vanderbilt. The bridegroom's home is in Glasgow, Scotland, where he met his wife three years ago, while she was on a tour of the British Islands.

The church was beautifully decorated with lilies and palms, and the old home of Grymes Hill, where the bride's people have lived for a hundred years, was gay with lilies and roses.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John C. Eccleston, rector of the church, and the Rev. Newland Maynard, of Baltimore. The bridesmaids were Miss Elsie Caesar, of New Brighton, and Miss Grace Leblond, of New York, cousin of the bride.

Miss Gertrude Curran, of Utica, and Miss Johanna Caesar, Miss Helen Janssen, and Miss William Allen, of New Brighton, were given of yellow satin, trimmed with yellow chiffon. The maid of honor wore a large lacy hat and bouquets of the bride's sister, Miss Jessie McNamee.

The bride was dressed in heavy white satin, trimmed with old lace. Her veil was of fine net. William H. Vanderbilt, of New York, her well-known uncle, gave her a diamond crescent, the gift of his cousin, Cornelius Vanderbilt.

The best man was Arthur Taylor, of Baltimore, and the ushers were George Stewart, Louis H. Erick and Frederick S. Sterling, all of Baltimore. The groomsmen were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, of New York.

The wedding was a very quiet affair, and the bride and groom were accompanied by their families. The wedding was a very quiet affair, and the bride and groom were accompanied by their families.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker and Walter Williams, who were her husband's associates, were all in the same business. Judge Gillespie reserved decision.

THE TRIAL OF THE SUIT OF JOSEPHINE H. SALTER AGAINST WILLIAM E. SALTER, who, Mrs. SALTER declares, is a "beautiful" tonorial artist, for absolute divorce, was heard before Judge Gillespie in the Superior Court, today. Both are Afro-Americans.

Mrs. SALTER, who was a more sile a gown, said that she was married in 1875, in Thompson street, and went to live at Westbury Station, L. I. Her husband then had a barber shop on Blooming street, but Mrs. SALTER did not remember the number. About two years ago SALTER, she said, abandoned her for another, Maggie Smith, with whom he had been living on West Sixty-seventh street. He had moved his barber shop up there, too, and they had a happy life, she said.

Mrs. SALTER declares that William Allen, William Walker